

Alessia Capetta graduated in Neurobiology cum laude at the University of Pavia. For her degree dissertation, she attended Prof. Vittorio Gallese lab at the University of Parma, where she studied the correlations between schizophrenia and autonomic system regulation. In parallel, she also attended the Sensory Encoding lab where she contributed to the study of the links between tinnitus and microglia.