

Associate Professor of Botany and Mycology at the Department of Earth and Environmental Sciences of the University of Pavia. The main research topic is focused on Mycology, above all on fungi living in extreme environment and on fungi useful for bioremediation, and biological control. She is author of more than 30 scientific peer-reviewed papers and participated to many national and international congresses.