

Valentina Giacometti

Graduated cum laude in Building Engineering and Architecture at the University of Pavia (2010). Ph.D. in Civil and Architectural Engineering (2014) and Research Fellow (2014/2015) at the Department of Civil Engineering and Architecture (DICAr) of the University of Pavia, researching the theme of historical heritage accessibility and usability, in particular in the case of Museums. From 2010 she is Assistant professor in the teaching Technical Architecture in the Degree Course in Building Engineering and Architecture at the University of Pavia and from October 2015 visiting assistant professor at the THM Technische Hochschule Mittelhessen University of Applied Sciences of Gießen (Germany). She participated as delegate in several national and international Congresses, as design tutor in several national and international workshops and summer/winter schools, three of which about the theme of accessibility and inclusive design, and she was design team member in several competitions, among which "Pavia for all" (winner project, Pavia - 2006) and "Design for all" (winner project, Torino - 2007).