

Gabriele Albanesi, teacher and artist, transfers his skills in the context of research activities, workshops, programming and pedagogical study in the field of image education. Particularly attentive to children's graphics and the relationship between art and science, since 2006 he collaborates with the Pavia Athenaeum Museum System - and most especially with the Pavia University History Museum - within specific projects aimed at local schools. The aim is an expansion of the cultural and educational opportunities offered to children by the museum reality.