

Matteo Soldi is a biologist and science communicator. After graduating in Molecular Biology at the University of Pavia, he attended the Master in Science Communication at the International School of Advanced Higher Studies in Trieste. After a long experience as science communicator at the Astronomical Observatory of the Valle d'Aosta Autonomous Region, Soldi has been employed at the Cà del Monte Planetarium and Astronomical Observatory, where he is chiefly tasked with management of communication activities aimed at general public and schools.